SYNOPSIS OF THE JOURNAL

LITERATURE STUDY

S.N. Andreev
Trigrams in the Structure of Verse Text

Key words: trigram; parts of speech; verse text; variability; text structure; cluster analysis.

The paper is devoted to the analysis of the text structure of ten long poems by A.S. Pushkin using the distribution of three element sequences – nominal and verbal trigrams. Different statistical methods are used.

L.N. Sinyakova
Metamorphoses and Dreams
in A.P. Chekhov's Narrative «The Shooting Party»: Story and Plot

Key words: poetics; story; plot; oneiropoetics; metamorphoses.

In the article the plot level of Chekhov's narrative «The Shooting Party» is explored. The plot paradigm connected with oneiroshere and the story syntagm consisting of characters' metamorphoses are revealed. The main plot situations, such as love story and the murder, are duplicated in the main character's slumbers. The story itself deals with sure ethic degradation of the female character and an unchangeable demonic narrator's character.
Interaction between these two poetics levels in Chekhov's narrative «The Shooting Party» exposes its conceptual and receptive potential.

L.V. Pavlova
Symbolism of Amber in the Poetry of Vyacheslav Ivanov:
Manifested and Implicit

Key words: Vyacheslav Ivanov; lyrics; symbol; amber; Dictionary of poetic language.

The article discusses the structure and functioning of a symbol in the poetic text using the example of the «amber» image from the poem «Taormina» by Vyacheslav Ivanov. It identifies and describes the process of adaptation of a symbol in the author's text.

M.A. Mironova
«The Day of the Turbins» Play Reviews in Émigré Press of the 1920s

Key words: review; The Day of the Turbins; Bulgakov; émigré press; reception of the play; Vladimir Khodasevich.

The article discusses the reception of M.A. Bulgakov's play The Day of the Turbins in the émigré press of the 1920s. It reveals the contradictory evaluations of performances including a detailed analysis of V. Khodasevich's review, who viewed «The Day of the Turbins» as an attempt to discredit the white movement. The article also determines the divergence of performance assessments by V. Khodasevich and émigré criticism.

B.G. Merkin
Author's Definition of Genre as a Key to Understanding the Idea of the Text.
M.M. Prishvin «Pantry sun»

Key words: Prishvin; Pantry sun; Tale-true story; genre features; plot; idea; psychological parallelism.

The article analyzes the relationship of the genre features by M.M. Prishvin's tale-true story with plot and thematic aspects of the narrative. Conclusions are made about the multi-layer construction of this text, where each of layers – fairytale (metaphorical, allegorical) and real – contributes to the creation of the message of the text.

G.A. Zakroeva
The Dreams of Yuri Zhivago in the Context of B.L. Pasternak's Novel
«Doctor Zhivago»

Key words: B.L. Pasternak; poetic hypnology; dreamlike space; oneirotop; oneiromotive; related topic.

The paper presents the analysis of dreams of Yuri Zhivago from the novel «Doctor Zhivago» by B.L. Pasternak. The dreams are considered in the frame of the composition of the novel and thematic contents of all oneirotops. Zhivago is the centre of poetic hypnology system, therefore, every dream of the character has its own semantics and symbolic meaning. Yuri Andreevich's dreams reveal creative edge of his personality as a poet, delicate spiritual connection with Larisa Fedorovna and contain the ideas of immortality and resurrection.

I.V. Romanova
The Poetics of Amplification in the Poetry of J. Brodsky

Key words: J. Brodsky; enumeration (amplification); lyrical hero; composition.

The article is devoted to the study of enumeration (amplification), which in Brodsky's poetry goes beyond rhetorical acceptance, carrying out important semantic and compositional features.

I.V. Marusova
«Armageddon came yesterday»:
Reception of A. and B. Strugatsky's Prose
in G.L. Oldie and A. Valentinov's Novel «This is where we live»

Key words: A. and B. Strugatsky; G.L. Oldie; science fiction prose; quotation; subtext; narrative; images; «Lame fate»; «This is where we live».

The article discusses the prose of A. and B. Strugatsky as a universal implication of modern science fiction. The function of quotations from the works by A. and B. Strugatsky are analyzed, as well as deeper structural links (the organization of the narrative, the image of the character, the system of artistic space) identified in the novel by G.L. Oldie and A. Valentinov «This is where we live».

LINGUISTICS

G.N. Ermolenko
The Theory and Practice of Text Analysis in the Writings of Roland Barthes

Key words: poststructuralism; the theory of text; deconstruction; intertextuality, narrative structure; semiology.

The article examines Roland Barthes' theory of text in the essay «From work to text». The article also investigates the type of text analysis introduced by Barthes in the book «S/Z: An Essay». Barthes' methods for detecting connotations (i.e. hidden meanings), his approaches to narratological and semiotic analysis are described.

G.G. Silnitsky
The Linguistic Category of «Sequentiality» and its Role in the Typological Integration of Literary Studies

Key words: linguistics; literary studies; sequential factor analysis; structural typology; actogenetic process; postmodernism; methodological integration of philology.

The article treats the linguistic semantic categories of «sequentiality» and «actogenesis» (multiphase generation of human acts), previously introduced by the author, as a basis for a structural typology of literary texts. This is achieved through a factor analysis of the consecutive stages of the «actogenetic» structure of human «lifelines». A particular actogenetic phase is singled out as the location of the conflict underlying the development of the plot. Within this marked phase the interplay of different internal (endogenic) and external (exogenic) influences exerted upon the subject is discussed. The author argues against the contemporary postmodernistic thesis that there may be given an infinite variety of interpretations of one and the same text and demonstrates the existence of fixed basic textological meanings which set certain limitations upon the range of their possible interpretations. These constant textual meanings determining the stable pivotal points of the generalized architectonic structure of a literary work may serve as a firm groundwork for a methodological integration of philology in its two main subdivisions, linguistics and literary studies.

A.G. Silnitsky
The Modal Component in the Semantic Structure of Polysituational Economic Verbs with an Instrumental Adject
(on the Basis of the Novel by A. Hailey «The Moneychangers»)

Key words: text; semantic features; strong and weak motivation; substantive adject; cluster analysis; semantic complex.

The article is dedicated to the problem of revealing the role of the modal component in the semantic structure of polysituational economic verbs with an instrumental adject on the basis of verbal lexical units from the novel by A. Hailey «The Moneychangers». In the meanings of the considered verbs eight semantic features, characterizing different modal aspects of simple situations within a complex situation, and four features with a general «substantive» meaning of an economic adject are singled out. These features are grouped into four clusters: «The Employee», «The Creditor», «The Seller» and «The Supplier».

Y.A. Kutsevich
The Semantic Category of Motivation and Factor Analysis of Literary Texts

This article deals with the problem of interaction between four main oppositions in the structure of the notion «motivation»: inner and outer motivation, positive and negative motivation, strong and weak motivation, realized and non-realized motivation. The famous novel by Th. Dreiser «An American Tragedy» is analyzed to bring to light the peculiarities of their conflict in the course of a particular volitional action. These specific features determine its structure and its deviation from the abstract model of seven factor stages: desire, intention, decision, plan, preparation, attempt, realization.

I.N. Kucher
Semantic Characteristics of Metaphor
(on the Material of Nominal Images of A. Tennyson's Idylls)

The article deals with the study of the dynamic trends and regularities in the evolution of Tennyson's image system. In this study a number of semantic characteristics of metaphor mirrored in the image system of the author's idyllic poetry are analyzed as the differential evolution individual style markers. Interrelations between the semantic characteristics are established by means of discriminant analysis.

A.E. Tishina
The Peculiarities of the Polycomponent Metaphoric Constructions
in the Individual Style of A.C. Swinburne

Some special features of the construction of the polycomponent metaphoric chains in the lyrics of A.C. Swinburne are examined in the paper. These metaphoric structures are revealed in the process of the quantitative analysis of the author's metaphor (on the basis of the frequency of the concepts forming the metaphoric model).

T.V. Nikolaeva
The Description of the Image System of Robert Browning Poetry in the First Phase of his Work

Key words: linguistic worldview; individual style; metaphor; Browning.

The article deals with the data of the image system analysis of Robert Browning poetry in the first phase of his work. It revealed a large number of metaphoric structures in Robert Browning's lyrics which confirms that the metaphor as a sign of the poet's individual style appears at the very beginning of his creative career and is of great interest for the understanding of his worldview.

A.S. Ageliarova
The Functioning of a Detached Attribute in a Dicteme

Key words: dicteme; detached attribute; postposition; preposition; linguistic unit; descriptive attribute; limiting attribute.

The paper contains the analysis of semantic and syntactic features of one of the most frequently detached parts of sentence in belles-lettres – attribute. It focuses on the essence and the syntactical structure of the attribute and its morphological characteristics. The paper also highlights additional contextual shades of meaning acquired by detached attributes when they function within the framework of the constituent unit of the text – dicteme.

L.M. Nyubina
Discourse «Fashion». The terminological aspect

Key words: fashion; discourse; subcode; term; historical aspect; agnonim; diachrony; synchrony; individualism; power; luxury; status.

Fashion is seen as a discourse, in which linguistic and non-linguistic means of nomination and communication interact ensuring its intersemiotic character. One of the important means of verbal expression in this discourse is the use of terms which show the relationship of this phenomenon with the history and culture of a particular national area. In this case many of them change into historicisms and agonims, which belong to the passive layer of the language. The terms become, on the one hand, a manifestation of diachronic relations in the language and show its relationship with the cultural periods in human development. In this regard, the terminology of fashion possesses international character.

R.W. Gurevich
«Levin's Mill» by Johannes Bobrowski:
a Small Village Novel about Big German History

Key words: novel, native folklore narration (skaz), intellectual and reflective elements.

In the novel «Levin's Mill» Johannes Bobrowski draws historical parallel between single event in a small village of East Prussia (1874) – robbery and eviction of poor Polish Jew Levin and the Holocaust, «big» politics in Nazi Germany (XXth century).

S.I. Dubinin
Foreign Language Speech Practice and Phrasebooks

for «The Reich Soldiers»
(Based on the Material of «Wehrmacht-Sprachführer. Deutsch-Russisch»)

Key words: Wehrmacht; bilingual phrase book; military discourse; German; Gerhard Leyst, Ferdinand von Ledebur.

The author of the article analyzes the main content and structural features of the basic German-Russian phrasebook for the Nazi army (Wehrmacht) during World War II («Wehrmacht-Sprachführer» 1941–1942), and defines the extent of its pragmatic adequacy.

J.I. Petrakova
The Interaction of Word Formation and Semantic Transfer in the Sphere of Onomasiological Tasks (Based on German)

Key words: naming; word formation; semantic transfer; onomasiological task; interaction.

The article highlights the interaction of word formation and semantic transfer in the sphere of their onomasiological tasks. As the research indicates these ways of naming either have specific naming targets or interact within their common onomasiological function.

V.E. Luebke
Discourse Theories and Argumentation

Key words: discourse; argumentation analysis; discourse community; consensus theory of truth; logic; topics; cognitive approach.

The present article deals with the correlation between the phenomenon of discourse and the theory and analysis of argumentation. This correlation can be observed on the conceptual, or else, philosophical level where argumentation and discourse are connected by the category of truth, as well as on the content-related level where discourse features design the content of argument main components and substantially determine the shape of an argument rhetorical realization. At the same time the article intentionally doesn't treat the phenomenon of argumentative discourse, concentrating its attention on different aspects of the relation between discourse and argumentation on the contemporary level of research.

HISTORY AND ARCHEOLOGY

A.I. Filyushkin
Meetings of Diplomats in the Border Area between the Grand Duchy of Lithuania and Russia in the First Half of the XVIth Century

Key words: border area; Grand Duchy of Lithuania; Russian state in the 16th century; international relations; meetings of diplomats.

The article is devoted to the research of the phenomenon of meetings of diplomats in the border area. This practice was extended in Russian-Lithuanian and Russian-Sweden border areas in the 16th century. The form of border meeting was very convenient, because these took place on the neutral territory. For the demarcation of borders it was possible to involve local population. They became witnesses as old residents. Local authorities were useful for these meetings as well. The meetings were connected with the practice of trials in the border area for settlement of the conflicts between marginal population. To hold such meetings was very difficult as agreements about organization of these meetings were often not fulfilled. Only by the end of the 16th century the form of meeting in the border area began to dominate in the diplomatic relations between Russia and Rech Pospolita.

Yu.E. Ivonin
From Religious Compulsion to the Irenism. Rethinking of the Experience of the Thirty Years War in the Public Consciousness of Europe

Key words: Thirty Years War; Reformation; Enlightment; tolerance; irenism.

The author studies the evolution of the tolerance in public consciousness of Europe from the Thirty Years War to the Great French Revolution of the end of the XVIIIth century. He underlines the Rethinking of experience of the Thirty Years War, in which religious and confessional intolerance is changed by the tolerance and irenism because of the rationalization of the thinking and spreading of the ideas of Enlightment.

L.I. Ivonina
The Policy of Augustus the Strong in the Great Northern War

Key words: the Great Northern War; diplomacy; war; confession; absolute monarchy; nobility.

The article analyzes diplomacy and military actions of Polish King and Saxon Elector Augustus the Strong in the years of the Great Northern War. The author establishes strong correlation of the internal situation in Rzeczpospolita before and at the beginning of the Northern War with European policy. The hereditary monarchy dream, which Augustus II cherished in the spirit of his time, was a ghostly illusion: the Polish gentry and the neighboring powers – Russia, Prussia and the Habsburg monarchy – opposed monopolization of power in the Polish-Lithuanian state.
